Abstract

This research article aims to explore Vaastu Shastra's principles and implications for entrance design in residential and architectural contexts. A detailed architecture directing layouts of spaces and their impact on occupants' well-being, prosperity, and harmony is provided by the ancient Indian architectural concept known as Vaastu Shastra. Although entrances are important in architecture, there isn't much discussion in the contemporary culture about how Vaastu principles relate to them. By solving these objectives, the study hopes to add to the library of knowledge already available in the fields of cultural studies, interior design, and architecture. It also seeks to close the knowledge gap between traditional wisdom and contemporary methods, promoting greater awareness of the influence of cultural traditions on the built environment and the human experience. The ultimate goal of this research is to allow users and individuals to design spaces that support balance and overall well-being while also connecting with cultural heritage.

Introduction

An ancient Indian architectural rule called Vaastu Shastra places a special focus on the importance of a home's main entrance as an area that affects the flow of energy and the occupants' well-being. The main door represents more than just a place of physical entrance; it also marks the boundary between a person's house and their place of safety. As per the Vaastu principles, the primary entrance plays a crucial role in creating a balanced and auspicious living environment by acting as a portal for positive energy, wealth, and harmony to enter the household. The main door of a house serves as both the family's entrance and an entrance for energy, according to Vaastu Shastra. "The main door serves as a point of transition from the outside world inside the residence. Nitien Parmar, a Mumbai-based Vaastu consultant, states that it is the location from where happiness and good fortune enter the house. The most important the entrance has been given top priority because it allows or blocks the passage of cosmic energy that produces peace, prosperity, and health.

Importance of Main entrance in Vaastu Shastra

The main entrance is known in Vaastu Shastra as the "archway to victory and progress in life," denoting its function in drawing positive energies and possibilities. It is said that the main door's orientation and design affect the way energy flows through the house overall, which has an effect on relationships, wealth, and health, among other areas of life. To maximize its beneficial impacts on the residents, Vaastu suggests particular recommendations for the main entrance's orientation, materials, and ornamentation.

Vaastu Guidelines for Main Entrance

- Direction of the Main Door: Vaastu places great importance on the direction of the main door, with the north, east, and northeast directions being the most fortunate. It is said that by doing these orientations, good vibes and wealth are drawn into the house.
- Design and Construction: The main door should be made of high-quality wood and have an eye-catching design that represents wealth and good fortune. To draw in good energy, it is advised that the front door of the house be the largest.

- Decor and Placement: Vaastu suggests against positioning specific items next to the main entrance, like coat racks, trash cans, or mirrors facing the entryway. Alternatively, to boost the positive energy flow, utilize nameplates, torans, and auspicious symbols.
- Color and illumination: To draw in good vibes, the main entry must have enough illumination. Lights that are yellow and simulate sunlight are advised. It's also advisable to paint the main door in bright colors rather than black in order to spread positivity.

Vaastu Remedies and Corrections

If the primary entrance breaks away from Vaastu principles, there are specific fixes and treatments that can be applied without required significant reconstruction. These solutions could include carefully placing things, artifacts, or symbols to lessen the negative consequences of an entry that is not in the right spot.

Which direction is best for a house entrance according to Vaastu?

The best directions for a house entrance are thought to be North-East, North, and East, in accordance with Vaastu principles. These orientations are unquestionably great because they encourage positive energy flow, which in turn brings wealth and luck to the residents. Contrary to popular assumption, however, entrances facing the west and south are also accepted.

Achieving balance is important for homes with doors facing opposing directions on a diagonal. Taking into account the direction and layout of the property will help achieve this. However, speaking with a Vaastu specialist is advised for individualized advice matched to your unique situation.

The direction you face as you exit the house is known as the "facing" of the house. The front door, or main door, of your home, place of business, shop, or factory, is crucial to your daily existence. Even when you are renting a property, the direction of the main entry is the most significant factor according to Vaastu. As it's claimed that "Our bodies grow and respond accordingly to whatever we eat," the same is true for the house. The mouth of the house is the entrance door.

The type of energies that enter a space through its entrance determines its growth and fate. For this reason, it's commonly claimed and thought that the entrance should be the most appealing feature in the room in order to welcome luck and strength.

Bringing Wealth in with the Positive Vaastu Entrance

A place with an energetic and enthusiastic entrance gate draws prosperity and good fortune to its people. Positive entrances are shown to produce fortune, not just for residential buildings but also for commercial complexes and industrial units. For instance, great prosperity, wealth, and happiness are drawn to an entrance that faces both the north and the north-west directions. According to Vaastu Shastra, if the entrance is not in a positive place, it causes a number of problems in life.

For Example: An entrance towards the South-West corner, for instance, results in losses and effort waste. Nonetheless, there are very successful treatment methods that have been tried and tested to produce outstanding outcomes for the current spaces, when the entrance is not in the Vaastu desired direction, without the need for relocation or demolition.

Vaastu for Property with an East Facing

Has it ever occurred to you that "East facing property" is the ideal choice? It seems that things are more complicated than they seem in the world of Vaastu Shastra. Yes, looking east seems ideal, but there's a catch.

First of all, a lot of times individuals forget where the entrance gate is. You could be assuming the risk of losses and mishaps if the weather is chilly in the Southeast. In an east-facing home, the true VIP spot for an entry is between East and North-East; that's where the luck lies.

Secondly, don't be duped by an apparent eastward orientation. Your ideal East may actually be more South-East if your plot isn't precisely North-South. It may need some Vaastu rectification before being called home because it doesn't have the best entry vibe.

Third, there is a good likelihood that something that is perceived as East facing could actually be regarded as South-East facing if the plot is not precisely aligned with the North-South axis, or zero, zero degrees North. Before entering that area, this entrance needs to be treated Vaastu-style. It is not the best entrance.

The story's line is that Vaastu Shastra isn't exactly like Google counsel. Get the true scoop by delving into it with the necessary expertise and understanding. Later on, your home will appreciate it.

Vaastu for Property with a West Facing

Plots facing west are like hitting the lottery for riches, success, and financial advantages, particularly if they have entrance gates between West and South-West (not South-West). The fortunate inhabitants of these plots seem to have a supernatural ability to draw in large sums of money. The catch, though, is that you cannot enter if it is between West and North-West. That combination is unfavorable and creates some bad energy.

Here's a heads-up before you invest heavily in a west-facing property with the ideal entry. If you're determined to have a garden or other greenery at the entrance, west isn't the best option. Therefore, you might want to reconsider making that west-facing property your main choice if gardening is your passion.

Vaastu for Property with a North Facing

Vaastu Shastra loves north-facing plots, especially those with entrance gates between the north and north-east, since they act as magnets for riches and fortune. According to Vaastu Shastra, the advantage of north-facing plots is that they frequently have several positive entrances. This implies that if your gates are contentedly resting in their proper locations, you will frequently not want any Vaastu therapy. North is the way to go these days when it comes to designing your ideal home. In the North, people adore having lawns, gardens, and open-to-sky spaces because they are so ideal. And what do you know? For water features or anything pertaining to water, north is also the preferred orientation. Thus, North is beckoning if you've been dreaming of a home with a serene water feature and a cool garden!

Vaastu for Property with a South Facing

It's commonly believed that only entrances facing east or north are lucky, and that any entry facing south should be avoided. Let us now explore the scientific aspects of Vaastu Shastra, which do not include facing or direction. The entrance door's placement (or degree of placement) in relation to the room's center is what counts most. This is the primary element that determines whether or not the entryway complies with Vaastu. Thus, a surprise! If the entry is placed properly, even a property facing south might be deemed fortunate. It's all about the magic of Vaastu.

Note: It should be noted that while choosing a house, the least desirable alternative is an entrance door facing south, which is towards the south-west. Alternatively, if the entrance door is situated between the south and the south-east, it can still be taken into consideration as long as a thorough vaastu check is done on the house with a qualified vaastu consultant. Of course, this does not discount the other aspects of the home, such as its orientation, shape, and the locations of its kitchen, bedrooms, and toilets.

In common circumstances, you don't need to make significant alterations to the building to make your entry function well in any direction. This is assisted by non-constructional Vaastu therapies that emphasize proper energy flow. Seek guidance from qualified Vaastu consultants to ensure accuracy. They determine the precise location of your entry through careful calculations. Attempting Vaastu remedies carelessly or without sufficient accuracy can lead to complications. It can even exacerbate the situation rather than assist it. Therefore, it makes more sense to consult professionals. They can offer you tailored guidance that complements the special elements of your area, ensuring that everything functions as it should.

Note: Reconstruction and demolition should be avoided for the sake of Vaastu. Zero destruction Vaastu solutions are what Vaastu Devayah Namah solutions are intended to offer. The vaastu advise provided above is based on

Vaastu for Home/Flat Entrance: Direction Tips

We will now talk about the 32 entrances in Vaastu and where a house entrance should be opened according with Vaastu.

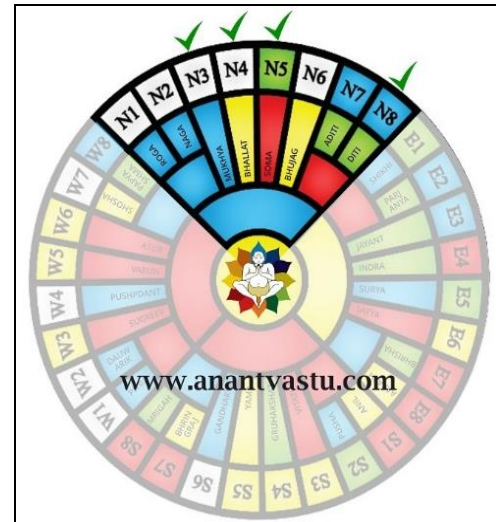

Fig 1: Main door Vaastu for NORTH facing house

- If your home faces north, the main entrance is situated in that direction.
- As everyone knows, Lord Kubera, the provider of riches and fortune, is in the north. For this reason, the majority of people believe that houses that face north are the most fortunate.
- In actuality, though, a house facing north is only considered fortunate depending on where its main door or entry is located. Put another way, a house facing northwards is considered auspicious based in large part on its main door Vaastu.
- The North direction has eight energy fields. Only four of them are fortunate enough to be chosen when performing the Vaastu for a home entrance.

Table 1: Main Door Locations in NORTH Direction

Deity	Deity Description	Pada Location	Benefits of House Entrance Door
Mukhya	Vishwakarma – Main deity of the building. Architect of the universe	N3	Fulfillment of wishes, manifestation of desires, auspicious per Vastu
Bhallat	Power of abundance, magnifies wealth	N4	Immense wealth and prosperity, magnified abundance
Soma	Magical drink, also referred to as Moon, associated with wealth (Kuber)	N5	Earn profits from efforts, convert work into money, grants spiritual upliftment. Auspicious per Vastu.
Diti	Mother of asuras, grants vision and liberal thinking	N8	Wider vision, ability to see real facts of life, success, increased wealth, may not always be ethical

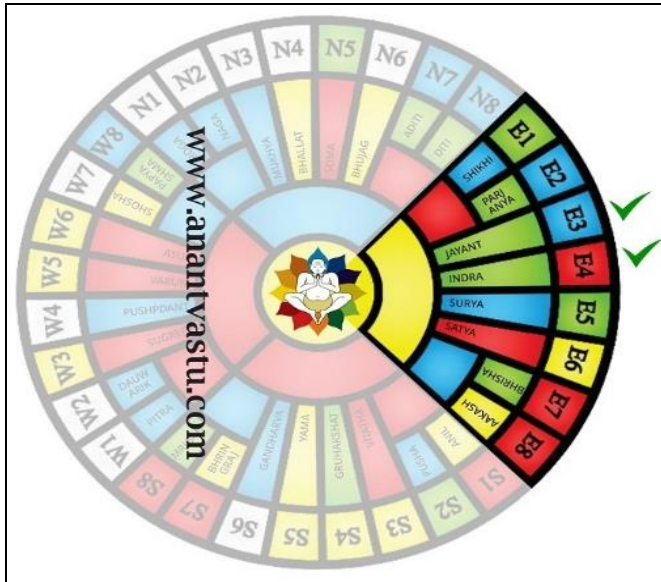

Fig 2: Main door Vaastu for EAST facing house

- According to Vaastu, a major door in the East is likewise highly fortunate. Again, in the case of east-facing houses, its placement might have either favorable or negative effects according to Vaastu.
- When determining the East orientation of a main door according to Vaastu, all energy fields stretching from the North East to the South East are taken into account.

Table 2: Main door placement Tips in EAST Direction

Placement	Diety Description	Pada Location	Associated Benefits
Jayant	Victory in endeavors, fills the body and mind with zeal & enthusiasm	E3	Success in all undertakings, increased motivation, expansion of social circle, growth and prosperity
Indra	King of devtas, grants power of association & administration .Ruler of all senses	E4	Strong association with influential people, especially government officials, ensures power & profits

- These are merely misconceptions based on Vaastu, which you ought to disregard. In actuality, a lot of prosperous businesspeople entered the market from the south. Additionally, a great deal of factories that follow Vaastu design have their main entrance on the south. There is therefore nothing to be concerned about.
- Indeed, facing southward are some of the most potent Shiva temples. These are the Mahakaleshwar Jyotirling, the Kedarnath temple, and the most recent Adiyogi statue in Coimbatore that was dedicated by Sadhguru. Since all of these are facing south, south cannot always be a bad direction.

Table 3: Main door placements tips in South Direction

Placement	Pada Location	Associated Benefits
Vithatha	S3	Immense prosperity, effective problem-solving skills (using sama-daam-danda-bheda)
Gruhakshat	S4	Fame, reputation, immense wealth, particularly beneficial for factories

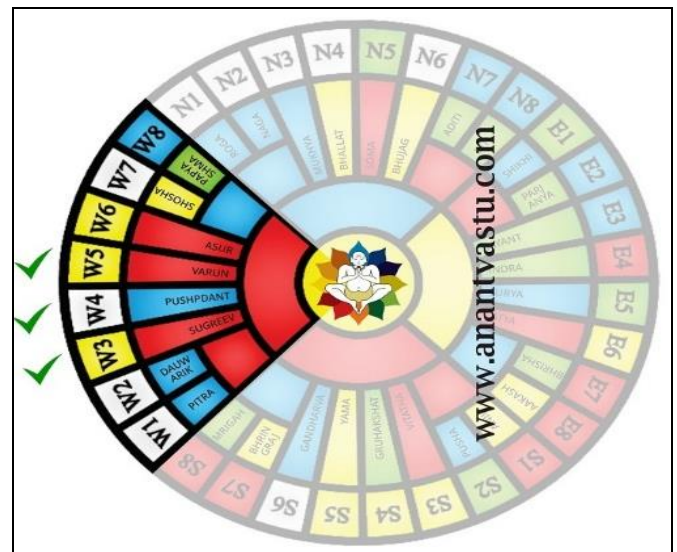

Fig 4: Main door Vaastu for WEST facing house

If positioned in the appropriate energy areas, an entrance facing west can be very beneficial and prosperous.

Table 4: Main door placements tips in West Direction

Placement	Pada Location	Associated Benefits
Sugreev	W3	One of the best entrances. Ideal for traders, businessmen; gives remarkable growth & enviable prosperity; beneficial for child's education or educational institutes
Pushpdant	W4	Assistant of Varun – the controller of the universe. Gives good financial growth & prosperity
Varun	W5	Universal controller; highly revered devta in the Vedas. Entrance here brings prosperity but also makes people over ambitious leading to their downfall.

Conclusion

In conclusion, Vaastu Shastra places great importance on a home's main entrance since it acts as a portal for prosperity and good energy to enter the living area. People can create a harmonic and energetically balanced environment that supports success, happiness, and well-being in their lives by following Vaastu rules for their main entry. People can harness the power of positive energy and create a sanctuary that supports their physical, emotional, and spiritual well-being by adopting Vaastu concepts for the entrance.

By addressing such objectives, the research hopes to add to the body of knowledge that exists in the fields of cultural studies, interior design, and architecture. It also seeks to close the knowledge gap between traditional wisdom and contemporary methods, promoting a better comprehension of the influence of cultural traditions on the built environment and the human experience. The ultimate goal of this research is to enable stakeholders and practitioners to design environments that support harmony and overall well-being while also connecting with cultural heritage.
